That developer did not back out because no one would buy the units. Up to 12 individuals in 4 owner-occupied condos is an attractive option for this site. He backed out for financial reasons but not because no one would buy.

16 one-bedroom units made up of short-term renters with at least one car per unit and a likely high turnover rate of units has a very different impact on our neighborhood than four 3-4 bedroom owner-occupied condos.

If needed, but I'd prefer someone read my comments as I am with my children. Thank you!
