OBSERVATIONS

An initial site visit was made on November 17, 2021. The entire site was walked and observations were made over the period of a couple hours. The site is mostly maintained grass turf in good condition. Plants and vegetation were generally dormant at the time, but no evidence of leachate seeps or stressed vegetation from possible gas migration was notice in the sod or other vegetation. No gas odors were detected either. The site generally slopes from the north and the south towards and open drainage ditch that runs through the center of the site. No erosion was noticed on these slopes or elsewhere on the site. The surface soils appeared to contain a large amount of sand. No desiccation cracks were observed in the surface soils.
